

TEN/ten_do_ten

ten_do_ten is a Japanese pixel designer who designs dot by dot. He designs dot-to-dot, domestically, sexily, craftily, crazily, stoically, day by day. He was selected as one of the 100 Graphic Designers for the 21st Century by TASCHEN.

ten_do_ten is a pixel designer who freely manipulates pixels. He started creating pixel art when he was in junior high school after encountering pixels on his father's microcomputer.

Starting with Amiga/Macintosh computer based MEGA DEMO (pixel graphics) production, After studying under graphic designer Gento Matsumoto while a student at Musashino Art University, he joined Delaware that rocks and rolls and designs in 1995 and left in 2001. In 2001, after 9.11, he started his own website "ten_do" and started to create pixel graphics every week.

He started his own website "ten_do" after 9/11, and has been actively showing his pixel graphics online every week without fail.

The number of pixel art pieces he has created has exceeded 23,000 and continues to do so to this day.

Based on daily pixel design, he has developed design and collaborative work in Japan in a variety of media, regardless of genre, including fashion, web, mobile web, spatial design, picture books, and more.

Major works include the Sogo Seibu Ikebukuro store campaign, the official logo for the Rolling Stones Japan tour, and the UNIQLO Christmas World campaign.

In addition to design and collaborative work in Japan, he has participated in numerous international client work, exhibitions, conferences, and contributions abroad. In recent years, he has been focusing on physical pixel art exhibitions, while continuing to publish a collection of his work.
